

Yolo County Profile

Yolo County was one of the original 27 counties created when California became a state in 1850. Yolo County's towns first developed along the Sacramento River with its first town and first county seat, Fremont, being founded in 1849 along the confluence of the Sacramento and Feather Rivers. Knights Landing, Washington, Cacheville (later called Yolo), Clarksburg, Winters, Esparto, Capay, Guinda and Davisville (Davis) also were built near waterways. Davisville had the added advantage of being on the path of the newly constructed railroad. Woodland, which became the county seat in 1862, began in a wooded area of valley oaks and was also served by a nearby railroad. In 1906, to emphasize agriculture's role in Yolo County, the University of California chose a 780-acre farm belonging to Jerome Davis for establishment of a university farm to serve as part of the College of Agriculture. The Davis farm has since become a separate campus of the University and has received world-wide fame for its research and education work. In 1987, West Sacramento became Yolo County's fourth incorporated city.

Yolo County Board of Supervisors

The Board of Supervisors is the duly elected legislative body of the County of Yolo. The Board sets and adopts policies and establishes programs for law and justice; health and mental health; social services; land use; transportation, water resources air quality and flood management; agriculture; economic development; emergency services; intergovernmental relations; libraries and areas of general governance. Based on these policies the Board of Supervisors fixes salaries, appropriates funds and adopts annual budgets for all departments. The five members of the Board are elected by district, are non-partisan and serve four-year terms. Board Members also sit as the governing body for Yolo County Housing, In-Home Supportive Services Public Authority, Yolo County Financing Corporation, seven county service areas and 13 fire districts, as well as participating in a number of regional governing bodies.

Yolo County Budget Fiscal Year 2018-19: $505,200,577 (general purpose revenue $94,372,963)

Yolo County is a middle-sized rural/suburban county with a strong commitment to the preservation of agriculture and open space. 87% of Yolo County's population lives within its cities, with almost 84.82% (548,981 acres) of its unincorporated land designated for agricultural use. 428,748 acres of those lands are in Williamson Act (land conservation) contracts (78% of all acres designated for agricultural use).

Unfortunately, preservation of agricultural lands comes at a cost. Yolo County is charged with performing all the same core services as its 57 sister counties, but it holds the unenviable distinction of meeting those demands with among the lowest share of property tax in the state. Also, as a result of the County's longstanding policy of directing urban development into its cities, the County receives almost no significant sales tax revenue.
